

William Watson (1858-1922)

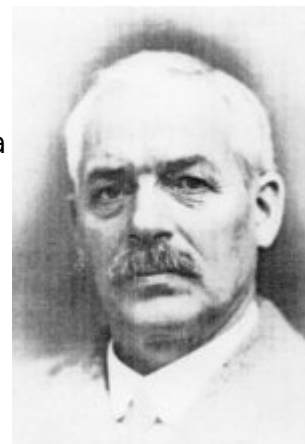

Cactus culture for amateurs

Thanks to William Christie for providing us with the original book.

 No copyright (public domain)

This is a pleasant book. After a short description of plant culture, the author presents the plants like in the lexicon, in... 1889 however.

William Watson was curator of Kew botanical garden from 1901 to 1922. He created the Kew Guild, which is a journal still published at Kew. Watson wrote a great number of articles on various subjects including Palms and of course Cacti, which were of particular interest to him. A volume of the Botanical Magazine was dedicated to Watson by Joseph Hooker, something which apparently Watson was very proud of.

- Read online in the reading room
- Download :
 - Interpreted file: Watson.pdf (13.3MB; 2010-11-05)
 - Original file: Watson_O.pdf (45.4Mo; 2010-11-05)

An interpreted file is also available from project Gutenberg. You will open the file with your web browser (HTML format) after expanding the zip archive.

- Download archive (.zip) : Watson_13357-h.zip (1,9MB; 2006-9-16)

You must comply with the rules of project Gutenberg if you use this document.
(These rules are given in the file, and they can be found at the project Gutenberg web site)

William Watson, picture provided by Archive Graduate Trainee, Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew

From:

<http://cactuspro.com/biblio/> - Bibliothèque numérique du CF

Permanent link:

<http://cactuspro.com/biblio/en:watson>

Last update: 2017/12/16 16:26

